Patrol Reports May Accidents

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 18 accidents on Milam highways during the month of May, according to Sergeant Fred Hurst, Highway Patrol supervisor for this area.

The accidents resulted in one death and seven injured and this makes a total of 83 accidents for the year with two deaths and 32 injured in Milam County.

County Records 3rd Fatality

SEA OF CONCRETE -- Nearly four million pounds of concrete went into foundation work for six coke storage tanks at Alcoa's Rockdale Works. It took 40 employees about 24 hours to complete the massive job as part of the plant's multi-million dollar modernization project involving Rockdale Work's carbon facility. These tanks replace the 22-year old coke storage building. Coke is a main ingredient of carbon anodes used to produce aluminum.

Hearne Youth Killed When Car Overturns

The county recorded its third ruled traffic death about midnight Thursday when a Hearne youth was killed in an accident on Farm Road 485 four miles west of the intersection of Highways 77 ard 190.

Pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital was Phillip Lewis, 16, of Hearne. He was a passenger in a car driven by Michael Powell of Ft. Hood. Powell was admitted to the hospital with undertermined injuries.

Investigating patrolman Leroy Broadus said Lewis was thrown from the car as it overturned after leaving the road.

Patrolman Milton Wright investigated a one-vehicle accident Wednesday about 4:15 p.m. when a pickup ran off Farm Road 1600 and hit a tree.

Driver of the pickup, Mrs. Janie Sutliff of the Salem community, was taken to a local hospital with undertermined injuries.

Area Roundup

Landslide Cracks Rosebud Dam

Contractors are working to repair the lake dam at Rosebud, where a landslide caused a large crack in the dam road and parts of it dropped as much as 14 inches along about 150 yards of road. The problem is believed to be caused by the French drains in the dam being filled up with silt and dirt and are now unable to handle water. Residents have been told to detour around the dam road to prevent further landslides.

Industrial Foundation Favored

Decision to organize a non-profit industrial foundation for McGregor was made by a group of local businessmen. Purpose of the foundation will be to raise funds and acquire property for prospective industry. Necessity for fast action in getting the foundation organized is the possible public auction of land declared surplus by the government.

Jetstream Moving To Dallas

Rather than "fight city hall" Jetstream Commuter, Inc. is moving from Waco to Dallas. The move is evidently a result of the Airport Advisory Board's recommendation last week "not to approve any commuter service into or out of Waco . . ." The lack of a certificate of public convenience and necessity issued by the Texas Aeronautic Commission has been the main legal question keeping the line out of Waco. TSTI officials would not let Jetstream use James Connally Airport until the certificate is obtained.

Virginia 4-H'ers Visit Caldwell

Fifteen Chesapeake, Virginia 4-H'ers and three adult leaders have been visiting in Burleson County for the past week, seeing sites, attending activities and learning about people from the area. The group raised $6,000 for the trip, holding a variety of dinners, raffles and a horse show. The youths are staying with 4-H families in the area. Next year, 4-H'ers from Burleson County will make the exchange trip to visit the Virginia area.

Commissioners Hear Complaints

Complaints about the county health department were heard by Williamson County commissioners at their last court meeting. Businessman James Burnett said eating establishments exist in the county which do not have water or bathroom facilities required by state law. Another area needing supervision, Burnett said, is the approval of septic tanks. The court will investigate the situation, according to the county judge.

Treatment Plant Nears Completion

A mmoth, near half-million-dollar expansion and modernization of Rockdale's wastewater (sewage) treatment plant -- a facility deemed 236 percent overloaded in a 1970 survey -- is now about 75 percent complete, the city's consulting engineers said. The treatment plant has been designed to serve a population of 7,500 and is projected to take care of the city's needs for another 25 years. The Federal Environmental Protection Agency is funding 75 percent of the cost and the city is financing the remainder through bonds voted in 1971 and a low-interest loan from the state.

Premiums To Rise 40 Cents For Medicare

Monthly premiums on the medical insurance part of Medicare will go up starting July 1.

The basic premium rate will go from $6.30 to $6.70 a month, according to Lewis C. Wall, social security district manager in Temple.

The medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses and is funded by individual premiums and Federal general revenues. The protection is offered automatically to people reaching 65 who are eligible for social security benefits -- and to disabled people under 65 who have been entitled to social security disability benefits for 24 consecutive months or more.

"The Medicare law requires an annual review of the cost of the medical insurance program and adjustment of the montly premium rate to cover the estimated medical expenses of Medicare patients," Wall said.

The 40-cent increase in July is related to a rise in the cost of medical services and compares to a 50-cent increase in the medical insurance basic monthly premium rate in 1973, according to Wall.

Medicare is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. "People can get information about signing up for Medicare by calling, writing, or visiting any social security office," Wall said. The Temple Social Security office is at 3920 South General Bruce Drive. The phone number is 778-1861.

Increase Due In Social Security Checks In July

People who are receiving social security checks will get a raise in July, according to Charles E. Bass, field representative of the Social Security Administration.

The 4% increase is the second part of a two-part 11% increase passed by Congress last year. The first step, a 7% increase, was included in the checks which were mailed in April of this year.

Supplemental Security Income payment amounts will also be increased in July. Eligible individuals, with no other income, who live in their own household have been getting payments of $140 but will now receive $146. When both members of a couple are eligible the maximum payment amount has been $210 and now is $219.

$107,520 Is Allocated For Manpower Project

A total of $107,520 has been allocated for a proposed manpower program in Milam County under the Comprehensive Education and Training Act of 1973, according to an announcement by the Central Texas Council of Governments.

The program is designed to provide job training and employment opportunities for economically disadvantaged unemployed and underemployed persons.

Allocation of these funds available under the act were made by the U. S. Department of Labor, with the allocations based on population and unemployment rates.

The allocations for Central Texas counties as listed by the CTCOG, are: $47,215 for Hamilton, $71,190 for Lampasas, $107,520 for Milam, $130,712 for Coryell, $384,507 for Bell, $33,210 for Mills, $59,926 for San Saba, and $107,520 for Erath.

The full manpower plan for Central Texas is available for public view at the CTCOG offices in Belton.

Council authorities explained that the allocated funds have been budgeted this way:

--$219,439 for summer jobs for youths and part time jobs during the coming school year, 336 positions.

--$18,919 for a regional job bank to keep employers and prospective employees in touch.

--$70,633 for adult on the job training where private employers are partially reimbursed for costs of training an employee.

--$270,256 for on the job training in non-profit organizations (cities, counties, schools and hospitals) 59 positions.

--$87,631 for individual referral whereby individuals are directed to educational institutions in order to obtain specific employable skills.

--$105,481 for counseling intake and referal to aid in directing the proper people to the correct type of training or the appropriate job-station, and counseling with them during their training period.

DPS CHIEF URGES SAFETY FOR FOURTH

Major Jack Sutherland, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, Waco Region, made an appeal today for all Texas drivers to take extra precautions throughout the July 4 holidays.

Sutherland pointed out that Texas traffic fatalities are approximately 28% lower this year than the number killed at the same time last year.

At Austin, Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the DPS, estimated that traffic accidents during the 102-hour July 4 holiday weekend would claim 42 lives in Texas.

Major Sutherlad added that as usual the DPS will be using all available troopers to prevent accidents, assist those that need assistance and to remove drunken drivers and others who are creating a hazard on the highway.

He made an appeal to the public to report suspected drunk drivers and for all to do their part in the life-saving campaign.

The July 4th holiday last year, which was only 30 hours in length, resulted in 13 traffic deaths in Texas. The 1972 holiday, which was 102-hours long -- the same as the upcoming period -- was marred by 80 deaths.

Palestinian Problem Casts Shadow Over Nixon Tour

By Ralph Harris

WASHINGTON Reuter -- The seemingly insoluble problem of the Palestinians cast a long shadow over President Nixon's triumphal tour of the Middle East.

Mr. Nixon found Arab leaders taking an extremely hard line in their approach to it.

The ordinary Egyptian, Syrian and Saudi Arabian also took great pains to make certain he knew what the stakes were in moves to reach a settlement with Israel, the territory on which the Palestinians lived until the creation of the Jewish state in 1940.

The frenzied welcome millions of Egyptians gave President Nixon reflected a joyous feeling that the United States, while still backing Israel's security, had a greater understanding and sympathy for their cause.

But it was also a warning that they expected him to exert pressure on Israel for a settlement of the Middle East conflict in their favor, especially on the Palestinian problem.

One of the most prominent banners that Mr. Nixon saw as he drove past wildly cheering throngs through the streets of Arab capitals said simply: "Remember the Palestinians."

Two Arab presidents and one monarch -- Egypt's Anwar Sadat, Syria's Hafez Al-Assad, and Saudi Arabia's King Faisal told him bluntly and publicly that there would not be a permanent peace with israel without a solution of the Palestinian issue.

Before he arrived in the Middle East, Mr. Nixon was well aware of the depth of Arab feelings. But it seemed clear that the deep emotions he encountered gave him something of a jolt.

The effect on his efforts to mediate the Arab-Israeli dispute is difficult to judge.

Mr. Nixon carefully avoided any substantive comment on how the roadblocks to a settlement should be removed.

He emphasized throughout his tour that he had not come to the Middle East with a briefcase packed with ready-made solutions for the Palestinian issue or Arab demands for the return of all Israeli-occupied territory and the eastern part of Jerusalem.

Mr. Nixon addressed urgent appeals to the Arabs and Israel to take risks for peace, but he said he was playing a mediator's role and did not intend to twist any arms.

He called for a step-by-step approach, urging both sides not to kill when the momentum that started with Israel's troop separation agreement with Egypt and Syria after the October war.

Above all, he seemed to be fighting for time so that hot passions can cool down, allowing each side to reflect soberly on the dangers of another war and, in his words, giving peace a chance in the volatile Middle East.

Arab leaders told Mr. Nixon that the Palestinian question was the crux of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, however, stressed the urgent need to deal with other problems first.

Dr. Kissinger told a press conference in Jerusalem it was premature to speculate about the Palestinian question because "at this point there are other issues, such as borders and territory, that require more urgent consideration."

U. S. officials travelling with President Nixon described the Palestinian problem as an enormously difficult one which basically would have to be solved by the two sides without outside interference.

Some diplomatic observers believed the United States would try to persuade Israel to accept a Palestinian state on Jordan's Israeli-occupied west bank.

Facts Raise Themselves...

One of the women from Cameron Women's Tennis Association notes little "doubt that twice as many youngsters" could have started tennis lessons this summer if courts had been available.

Recreation facilities are inadequate for individual sports, lifetime sports in this community. We all know that.

We realize a full team sports program has been instituted in the public schools.

Additional tennis talent from Mary Hardin-Baylor College, some of the state's best players will continue a summer program begun by this tennis association.

The fallacy is that funding for facilities goes where the gates are, in effect, amusement for adults and graduates who are fans of team sports.

What has happened in Cameron is that tennis, which also can be a team sport, is as popular as football or basketball in practice, considering limitations of facilities.

The tennis boom is on throughout the country, which may be measured as a fad. But the fact is now and for at least a student generation, not to mention adults who will play 25 to 50 years in many cases, there is an enormous need for tennis facilities.

It is not just a school need. It is a community need. We have raised the question for years now. And the facts now raise themselves. A popular, individual sport, playable all one's active adult life, has been ignored in the financing of recreation facilities in this community.

We ask again: What are we going to do about it?

Without Planning...

An intercontinental Dark Ages is what a lot of people in this world hope to avoid.

A movie the other night reminded us of the darkness that fell across Europe between the Crusades and the Italian Rennaissance.

Knights ahorse were going about the West European countryside attacking peasants, who were scouring the countryside themselves for isolated country manors and small castles to commandeer.

It was called the Dark Ages. The hero and heroine of this movie were trying to get out of the country (France) to the British Isles. But they never made it. They were killed in an abbey abandoned by the monks as the movie ends. And as death is imminent, the viewer is left wondering whether it is knight or peasant charging down the hall.

People were starving, leaderless, reducing villages to angry mobs, turning knights from acts of valor to acts of horror.

It was one reason men left the continent and continued to leave for a new world across the English Channel or the Atlantic Ocean.

Trouble is today there is no channel or ocean to put between the civil and uncivil.

So the planners are at work, hoping to outrun the time left to curb rampant population in under-developed, starving countries.

Spillover beyond the elemental grasp of communism and productivity of capitalism would turn the gainly and ungainly on one another.

Without planning, a Dark Ages beyond science is inevitable.

GI Home Loans Increase

After a two month lull, GI home loan activities "perked" up somewhat in April, the Veterans Administration reported today.

Officials said that despite a tight money market, loans jumped nearly 37 percent to 28,800 from 21,000 in March, and nearly 10 percent over a year ago.

Applications for loans climbed 8 percent, from 31,200 in March to 33,800 in April, nearly 6 percent highter than April 1973. There was a slight decline in appraisals during April, 1.5 percent to 54,300, from 55,130 in March. Even with the decline, however, VA officials noted, April appraisals were 13 percent higher than a year ago.

Eligibility determinations in April edged up .5 percent to 60,900 compared with 60,600 in March, but lagged 2.5 percent behind April 1973.

VA officials said 8.4 million veterans and service personnel have purchased homes values at $103.6 billion since the GI loan program was initiated shortly after World War II.

The agency guarantees 60 percent up to a maximum of $12,500, whichever is less, of home loans private lenders make to service personnel and veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict who have served at least 90 days of active military duty.

Also eligible are veterans who served at least 181 days after January 31, 1955, veterans discharged for service-connected disabilities, windows of eligible veterans, and spouses of service personnel missing in action or prisoners of war more than 90 days.

Business Booms For Professional Donors

By Peter O'Neill

NEW DELHI

Reuter -- In India, where hospitals are facing an acute shortage of blood for transfusions, business is booming for the blood-peddlers and the professional blood-donor.

A Delhi Red Cross spokesman says the hospital blood banks need 75,000 units a year (one unit is a half-pint) and available supplies add up to only 35,000 units.

But what must disturb the public and doctors alike is not only the shortage, but the doubtful quality of the blood in stock. A top Red Cross official warned that hepatitis had shown a marked increase because of the transfusion of impure blood.

Impure blood can reach the patient from suppliers, often unlicensed, who sell stocks which have been bottled in unhygienic conditions to avoid detection. The habit of adulteration or substandard controls dies hard when a unti can sell from 75 rupees (10 dollars) to 250 rupees (27 dollars).

But the more insidious route starts with the professional donor. The Red Cross in India refuses to pay for blood and will only accept from voluntary donors.

But because of the shortage, one Red Cross official is quoted as saying, 95 per cent of stock in hospital and commercial banks comes from professional donors. Other estimates are not so high but the average is still very significant.

Most blood banks have no foolproof arrangements to screen the donorsand it is feared that a common cold which a donor had two weeks before he gave blood could affect its quality.

Blood should be given only after intervals of four months, but the professional donor, who earns 15 rupees (1.50 dollars) per unit does not wait that long.

Usually under - nourished and selling his blood because he is poor, the donor will not declare that he may have had jaundice, syphillis, malaria, influenza, or any other disease or infection. He will move from one place to another lying to blood banks about when he last donated.

Doctors will try to weed out the dangerous professional at their clinics, but unless the doctor spots an obviously unfit person or the sign of an unhealed puncture mark, he usually has no equipment to do a blood analysis, especially outside the major centers.

The gap in supplies met by the commercial blood banks has to be filled, and the doctor with a seriously injured patient is placed in an invidious position when he has to go to these banks no matter how careful they have been in building up their stocks.

Another way of meeting the shortage is that hospitals usually insist on relatives of patients giving blood. But often relatives dodge this responsibility, fathers denying relationships to sons and calling themselves neighbors.

The blood peddler, in close touch with informed circles in the hospital, then appears and promises the relatives a donor -- for a fee.

The donor declares a distant relationship and picks up a bonus from the peddler.

The Red Cross sees this problem as one of educating the public. And the hospitals are aware that they ought to make close checks on the donor's credentials.

But even the Red Cross falls victim to the peddler. The cards it issues to voluntary donors are valid for one year and they can fall into the wrong hands. Hospitals honor the cards by making available the donated quantity of blood to the holder or immediate relative when the need arises.

The peddler obtains these and sells them a high prices to relatives of patients requiring transfusions.

TSTI Chairman Offers Advice For Indoor Plants

Indoor plants have be - come almost a necessity to every room whether in an office or in a home. Yet many people haven't acquiredthat "green thunb" vital to successful plant life.

"With the trend of living changing to apartments and the publicity of environmental protection, people are more plant conscious than ever before," said James Fitts, floriculture and ornamental horticulture program chairman at the James Connally Campus of Texas State Technical Institute.

Fitts has had over 25 years experience in the teaching and horticulture profession. He is co-author of an Ornamental Horticulture textbook for high schools and has written several articles for national magazines.

"There are many plants that can be grown indoors, but some require special care," Fitts said. "It is important that we know about the plant and know how to care for it."

Because of the upswing in interior ecology, foliage plants are one of the hottest things on the market. There are over 250,000 species of flowering plants in many shapes, sizes and colors.

Most of the foliage plants have their origin in the tropics. Home temperatures (75 degrees - 85 degrees) closely resemble the temperatures of the tropics. making foliage plants excellent indoor plants.

"Because the plants are from the tropics, a highly organic soil is best," said Fitts. "The soil should be one that can hold water to prevent rapid drying out, but one that provides good drainage," he added.

For a general rule, a good soil mixture for growing indoor plants is one half coarse acid sphagnum peat and one half coarse sand or perlite. Regardless of the mixture used, it should never pack solidly, expecially with repeated watering.

"A feeding program for the plant is advisable. It is better to use soluble fertilizers for general feeding programs," Fitts said. Time allowance for plant feeding depends upon the type of plant. Some require feeding every five weeks while others require feeding every six months.

"Well decomposed and treated manure is good, but it must be used wisely," said Fitts. "Be sure it is free from seeds or else grass will grow in your potted plants!"

Water is essentail to plant growth, yet too much or too little can kill the plant. "More plants die from overwatering than underwat- "Rain water is better than tap water because it has less impurities. Chlorine and salts stunt the growth of plants, so it is wise to try to stay away from these impurities," he said.

Relative humidity should be constant for the foliage plant and can be kept at 75 per cent or higher. A spray type watering system is desirable.

Although the plants are shade lovers, shading is usually overdone. "The plants need bright light, but not full sun," said Fitts. Also a sudden change from the shade to a sunny window sill will harm the plants."

Location of plants in the home or office is also an important factor. "Avoid keeping the plant in an air conditioner draft or near a heater. Keep them clear from kitchen greases and household dust. Leaf polishers and cleaners can be bought to rid the leaf of these particles," reported Fitts.

"Foliage plants are a wise choice for indoor gardening because they require little maintenance and they have a long life, while blooming flowers are temporary. They also provide good contrast in color and shape," said Fitts.

"Always select healthy plants when buying. Keep them in a near-ideal location, furnish them with proper amounts of water, engage in a general purpose feeding program, use a soil high in organic matter, and plant in the right size container. These steps will ensure success in indoor plants," he reported.

Some common plants that will withstand most adverse house conditions and abuse are the Chinese Evergreen, Jade, Dumbcane, Dracaena, Rubber plant, Peperomia, Philodendron, Devil's Ivy and Snakeplant (Mother-in-law tongue).

Plants that do well under average home conditions are the Norfolk Pine, Begonias, Caladiums, Dracaenas, English Ivey, Philodondrons, Artillery plant, Three Men in a Boat, Ferns, Zebra plant, Palm species and Achimenes.

"Many of these plants can be trained to take a specific form by pinching it back at different intervals," said Fitts. "Jade is a good one for this," he added.

"All plants send out distress signals when something is wrong. To know what these are and what they mean are important to the plant's life," said Fitts. When the plant turns yellow and is wilted, high temperatures or root injury may be the cause. A weak growth with light green or yellow foliage may be the result of too much light, root rot or a poor root system.

The yellowing and dropping of leaves at various levels on the plant may be caused by gas fumes, chilling, overwatering or poor drainage. Overwatering can cause the lower leaves to turn yellow and drop off at the slightest touch. Burned margins or brown tips on the leaves can result from too much fertilizer, low temperatures or allowing the plant to become too dry for short periods.

Small leaves is an indication of poorly drained soil, tight soil mixture or the soil being dry over long periods. Lack of sufficient light and high temperatures may cause small leaves and long internodes.

PLANT SPECIALIST - James Fitts, floriculture and ornamental horticulture program chairman at State Tech in Waco, examines an indoor plant in one of the greenhouses at State Tech. Indoor plants are one of the hottest things on the market, but there are skills to caring for them.

Planning Grant For CTEDD

Congressman W. R. "Bob" Poage and Senators Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower have announced a $49,500 planning grant for the Central Texas Economic Development District, headquartered in Waco.

The grant, authorized by the Economic Development Administration, Department of Commerce, is for the District's eighth operating year. During the past seven years, the district has brought in some $5.9 million in Federal funds to help finance 28 projects costing $16 million and increasing employment by some 5,000 people.

The district serves ten counties in Central Texas and exists to help promote economic development in the area it serves.

Alcoa RW Announces Promotions

Two promotions were announced at Aluminum Company of America's Rockdale Works involving the plant's environmental engineering and mechanical maintenance departments.

Evans Drake, process engineer since 1970, has been elevated to senior process engineer and Carol Wise, millwright for the past 18 years, was promoted to mechanical maintenance foreman.

Drake, a 1970 chemical engineering graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, has been responsible for the plant's air quality control systems since he first joined the company. Prior to permanent employment, Drake worked two summers as an engineering intern at Alcoa's Point Comfort (Tex.) Operations on the Gulf Coast.

The honor graduate of UT was an active student chapter member of Phi Eta Sigma (honorary engineering fraternity), Alpha Chi Sigma (professional engineering society) and played intercollegiate golf.

The Boling native and his wife, Judy, have one son, John Evans, 3, and reside at 1415 Werner Hill, Austin.

Wise, a 1949 graduate of Milano High School, joined the company in 1952 as craft helper. The following year, he was elevated to a millwright "B" classification. He was promoted to millwright "A " three years later, the post held until this move.

The two-year Army veteran is a member of the Masonic Lodge and is president of the Gause Water Supply Corp.

He and his wife, Bessie, have three sons and a daughter and reside in Gause, Box 85.

Wet-Suit Archeologists Search For Old Shipwreck

Somewhere off the coast of Turkey this summer, American divers will be swimming down after a treasure that has been waiting underwater for 27 centuries.

Not chests of gold and pirate booty, they don't expect to find anything like that. Instead, they hope to bring to the surface a much rarer prize: the world's oldest fragments of a drowned ship.

"It's an Iron Age wreck," says Dr. George Gass, leader of the expedition, "and it went down sometime in the seventh century B. C. Of course, archeologists never know what's down there, but we have strong hopes for significant finds."

In 1960, the marine archeologist tried to retrieve an even older wreck -- a Bronze Age ship that went down 3,300 years ago. But the wooden ship had entirely disintegrated and only the cargo of bronze ingot was retrieved.

The National Geographic Society has supported both expeditions and is continuing to help finance the raising of the Iron Age ship this summer.

How these ships were constructed, D. Bass says, has long left modern archeologists mystified. But the puzzle may be largely solved by any hull planks and timbers recovered from the Iron Age wreck and added to other important -- but not as old -- evidence brought up from similar sunken ships.

Archeologists are as intrigued by these possibilities as by whatever the cargo may reveal about the sailors of the day and the way of life in the eastern Mediterranean 27 centuries ago.

The Iron Age ship went down along one of the major trade routes from Asia Minor.

It sank at a time when Greece was beginning to change markedly under such influences arriving from the East as alphabetic writing and coined money -- symbols of civilization gradually to spread throughout the Western world.

It also was a time when the East was surrendering techniques of bronze casting, and of carving stone in pieces large enough for the monumental Greek sculpture that continues today to be hailed as outstanding examples of Western art.

Dr. Bass, at age 41 one of the world's pioneer wet-suit archeologists, is president of the newly formed American Institute of Nautical Archeology, a small group of veteran archeologists who have recovered many of the ancient wrecks found in the last decade in the eastern Mediterranean.

The Iron Age wreck was a coastal freighter. It lies 110 feet down, off a rocky barren point notorious even among today's sailors for its treacherous winds.

He won't say where it is. It was chanced upon seven years ago by a sponge diver and has never been looted by renegade divers hunting artifacts they can sell profitably in the illegal market in antiquities.

The AINA archeologists have located 17 wrecks along the southern Turkish coast, and plan to investigate several thoroughly. But Dr. Bass feels the Iron Age ship is the oldest of them and probably the most important.

UT Library Fills Requests For Books

Resources of the three-million - volume University of Texas library, 12th largest among academic libraries in the U. S., are accessible to the public far beyond the confines of the UT campus.

Through its Inter-Library Service, UT -- on request from another library which does not have a book a reader wants -- will lend a book, if it is available.

Last year the UT Inter-Library Service processed an average of 100 off-campus requests per day for books.

Treatment Told For Blossom Rot

Many home vegetable gardeners are experiencing "physiological" problems with tomato and pepper plants, points out Sam Cotner, vegetable specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Blossom-end rot, which is identified by water-soaked areas near the base of the fruit which rapidly turn dark and eventually rot, is causing losses this year in home gardens in all areas of the state.

"Although the exact cause is unknown, blossom-end rot is thought to be caused by plant roots being unable to take up water as fast as it is being lost by the leaves," explains Cotner. "Consequently, water is removed from the developing fruit, causing breakdown of the cells at the base of the fruit. Oftentimes, secondary diseases occur, resulting in further decay."

Conditions causing this disorder may have occurred two to three weeks before the symptoms appeared. Soils which are two set or too dry inhibit uptake of water by plant roots and this results in the rot.

"To help prevent the occurrence of blossom end rot, mulch around the plants and follow good watering practices," suggests the Texas A&M University System specialist. "If the problem is already occurring, a foliage spray consisting of one level tablespoon of calcium chloride per gallon of water will reduce losses. Repeat the treatment every five to seven days if conditions favorable for blossomend rot continue, such as hot, dry winds in combination with overly wet or dry soils."

Fortunately, blossom-end rot is usually only a temporary problem, and fruit which develop and ripen during good weather conditions should be of high quality, notes Cotner.

Comments From Chris

By Chris Holcombe
Milam County Extension Agent

Thursday, June 20, was a long and busy day for 45 Milam County Home Demonstration Club Members and their guests. This was their annual Exhibit - Expansion-Education Committee Fun Day and Tour.

The group left the New Salem Home Demonstration Club House at 8:00 a.m. and the first stop was at the Yankee Peddler, antique, herb, and flower farm near Brenham. Here the group toured the herb gardens and learned the names and uses of many of the herbs. Following this they toured the green house and the antique shop.

At Washington-On - The-Brazos the group held a picnic lunch in the pecan grove near the river and you have never seen so much good food. One receipt that this agent came back with was for a Chocolate Nut Sheet Cake that Marguerite Sorenson of the New Salem Home Demonstration Club. The reciepe is as follows.

2 cups sugar
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup water
1 stick margarine
1/2 cup crisco oil
4 tablespoons cocoa
1/2 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs, slightly beaten

Sift together sugar, flour and soda. Set aside. In a saucepan, place water, oil, oleo, and cocoa. Bring to a boil and pour over dry ingredients. Mix. Set aside. Mix together buttermilk, eggs, and vanilla; add to chocolate batter. Bake in a greased and floured 13x9x2 inch pan at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes or until when you touch the top of the cake it springs back.

Start preparing icing 5 minutes before cake is done. Frost in pan.

1 stick oleo
6 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 tablespoons (scant) cocoa
1 pound box powdered sugar
1 cup chopped pecans or coconut

Place oleo, cocoa, and milk in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, being careful not to let it scorch. Add powdered sugar, vanilla and pecans or coconut. Spread on hot cake. Keeps well. And is it delicious.

New Law May Make Safer 4th

For years it has been an explosive issue. But after this 4th of July the bang will have gone out of it.

No firecrackers.

In fact, under a new law which goes into effect this month shooting firecrackers anytime in the United States will be against the law. Not just big firecrackers, like cherry bombs and three-inchers, but all the little ones too. Or, as the law puts it, anything under 1-1/2 by 1/4 inches.

If kids are unhappy, parents are more hopeful than ever for a "safe and sane Fourth."

Last year, firecrackers were responsible for one out of every four of the 15,000 fireworks injuries reported. Cherry bombs thrown at somebody caused three-fourths of the injuries. And three fourths of these victims were teen-agers and younger children.

Legacy of Violence

Accident statistics like that tell only the latest chapter in a violent story that goes back to America's earliest days, the National Geographic Scoiety says.

John Adams, destined to become the second president of the United States, set the tone for red-blooded celebrating without suspecting the blood-shedding that would go along with it.

Adams, ecstatic about the founding fathers' preliminary approval of the Declaration of Independence on July 2, wrote his wife about the day:

"It ought to be solemnized with Pomp and Parades, with Shews, Games, Sports, Guns, Bells, Bonfires , and Illuminations from one End of this Continent to the other from this Time forward forever more."

The new Americans caught the spirit of it quickly. On the eve of July 4, 1836, a New Yorker pushed his way through the crowds of merrymakers and reported the air "impregnated with the smell of punch and gunpowder" and vibrating to the roar of muskets, pistols, firecrackers, cannon, and other noisemakers.

Firecrackers vs. War

Big cannoncrackers were setting the tone in the years after the Civil War, but the most dangerous days -- as far as history records -- came after the turn of the century.

In the first 30 years of this century, fireworks killed 4,290 Americans, or almost as many as the 4,435 who died winning the Revolution that Independence Day marks.

For example, on July 4th 1903, when there were only 3/8ths as many Americans as today's population, fireworks accidents killed 446 and hurt 3,943.

In its nationwide ban, the Consumer Products Safety Commission outlaws not only all firecrackers, but such other fireworks as:

Fountains, California candles, spike and handle cylindrical fountains, handle fountains, Roman candles, rockets with sticks, wheels, illuminating torches, sparklers, mines and shells, whistles without report, toy smoke devices, filter devices, helicopter - type rockets, missile-type rockets, and party poppers.

ASAP Will Sponsor State Wide Workshop

BELTON

The Central Texas Council of Government's Alcohol Safety Action Project will co-sponsor a state-wide workshop on DWO rehabilitation schools.

Scheduled for July 31, August 1 and 2, the workshop will be co-sponsored by the American Automobile Association. Meetings and accomodations will be at the Stagecoach Inn in Salado.

Objectives of the workshop are to acquaint participants with DWI counterattack possibilities and probationers schools, and to establish a working rapport among DWI schools in Texas.

Participants will represent the judiciary, probation departments, councils on alcoholism and councils of government on a statewide basis.

Several outstanding speakers are already confirmed for the meeting, including Sam Yaksich, Executive Director of the American Automobile Association Foundation for Traffic Safety; Ken Nevil, Assistant Administrator for Support Services of the Governor's Office of Traffic Safety; and George Gustafson, Acting General Manager of the Texas Safety Association.

Also scheduled to speak are Judge Giles Dalby, Garza County Judge, and John D. McDonald, Director of State Programming of the Texas Commission on Alcoholism.

Workshop programs are being designed to serve those communities which have DWI probationers schools or other types of countermeasure programs and also those communities which have no established programs as yet.

A part of the program will be workshop attendees observing a DWI probationers class, called the AID (Alcohol Information for Drivers) School, which is taught by the Central Texas ASAP.

The program will also include demonstrations of breath testing equipment, which measures blood alcohol concentration levels, and psychophysical equipment, which measures loss of reaction time and visual ability after the consumption of alcoholic beverages. The newest audio-visual teaching aids, supplementary printed materials, and suggested DWI school curricula will also be presented to the group.

The workshop is being planned under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Eyman, Education Coordinator of the Central Texas Alcohol Safety Action Project, and Rick Timmons, who is Public Relations Director of the Texas Division of the American Automobile Association.

4-H CLUB ACTIVITIES

By Rodney Kruse

Ecology Conference

The Eighth Annual Texas 4-H Ecology Conference was held June 18-21 at the Texas Tech Center in Junction.

Chosen to attend from this area was Suzanne Sims of Thorndale, Texas in Milam County. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Sims of Thorndale.

The conference was based on ecology and our environment. Each 4-H'er rotated through each session which included the topics of environmental quality, forestry, outdoor recreation, range, soil and water and wildlife.

The groups took a field trip to the YO Ranch in Junction and to the Kerr County Parks and Wildlife Dept. The exotic animals, game animals and range land was observed.

On the conference staff were specialists in the areas of ecology. They gave each 4-H'er information to gain a deeper appreciation for natural resources, to understand how individuals can influence the wise management and use of natural resources and to participate in an in-depth exploration of the workings of nature under the direction of Extension specialist. The conference was a challenge as well as relaxing and enjoyable.

There were 36 youngsters in the program, divided into one intermediate group and two beginner groups. Each group met twice a week.

Among techniques taught were the forehand stroke, backhand stroked, and the serve. To conclude the program a tournament was held for each division.

Winners in the intermediate girls singles were: first place Kristi Tumlinson; second place, Betty Sue Chubb; third place, Renee Sheguit.

In intermediate boys singles Chris Glaser won first place, Allan Sapp, second and Martin Luecke third.

Winners for intermediate doubles were John (Buster) Miller, and Mark Looney, first; David Cummings and David Mueck second; Paul Cauley and Renee Sheguit, third.

The beginner group held a doubles tournament with Nelson Huffman and Pamela Lange first; Tim Cheatam and Ellen Lucko, second; and Laura Angell and Ruth Canady third.

Mrs. Rosalee Mondrik, spokesman for the Women's Tennis Association, said, "several individuals were turned away from the clinic because of an inadequate number of courts.

"It is with deep concern that this information is submitted, because there is no doubt that twice the number of young people could have started on a game that they could have participated in until late in life.

"Hopefully, concerned adults will come forward and try to aid their city in acquiring sufficient playground facilities for their children and themselves for leisure time activities."

Catfish Biting At Somerville

Catfish are biting on shrimp below the spillway with the gates open, it was reported from Lake Somerville. Top of the Hill reports that bass are biting "so-so" right now and most of the cats caught in that area were caught at night. The bass are being caught on spoons, "Little Georges," and anything that shines. In spite of the heat visitors are having a good time skiing and boating.

Waco Missions Spook Clippers

The tough Waco Missions took a twin bill from the Rockdale Clippers Sunday at Fair Park, winning the first game 10-9 and taking the nightcap 11-9. Ronnie Burrough and Chili Lopez led the Clipper offense with three hits in the first game while Burrough and David Kubiak got three hits in the second game. The Clippers' season record now reads nine wins and eight losses.

Boating TIPS

From the Marine Division Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

CLEAN WATER

Are the fish in your favorite waterway competing with litter for the end of your line? If so, let's try to follow some helpful hints to clear up the mess.

It only takes common sense and a little forethought to make sure your boating fun is not the cause of water pollution. Here's how:

- Always include a garbage bag with take-on-board equipment. As a further assurance against littering, keep a supply of garbage bags on the boat. Any kind of receptacle will do as long as it leaves the boat when you do and not before.

- Place food for a day's outing in a sturdy air-tight container. Anything not eaten will remain fresh and undamaged for later use—in the container and not stale and soggy in the water.

- Inform members of your crew that any litter thrown overboard must be personally retrieved. There should be no exceptions to this rule.

These are simple rules to follow. With a little imagination you can think of other ways to help preserve your's and everyone's natural right—clean water.

Check Insurance Before Taking Trip

Summer is here -- and the living is easy. And often, for Texans anyway, this is the time for automobile trips to the coast, to any number of tourist attractions, to the lakes and to state and national park facilities.

"Unfortunately, many motorists will be almost driving blind when it comes to basic automobile insurance knowledge," O. A. Edgeworth, chairman of the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office (TAISO), said recently.

"Whether for a vacation or any trip, short or long, drivers need to know what type of auto insurance coverage they have," Edgeworth said. "Most wait until there is an accident to find out how much and what kind of protection they have."

Edgeworth urged Texas motorists to double check with their agent or company representative before leaving on a trip to see what their own coverage is as well as what might be need in other areas.

Some people believed that thunder was caused by horses' hooves.

SEWING FOR OTHERS - from left, Vanessa Marak, David Marak, Raye Nell Obermiller, Rebecca Riola, Mrs. Terry McNeil, Charles McNeil, Ruth Riola, Robin Gray and Tami Gray.

Belton To Host July Celebration

For the 55th consecutive year, Belton will stage its traditional Independence Day Celebration on July 4th. The 50th annual July 4th rodeo will be July 2, 3, 4.

The Belton Area Chamber of Commerce has made special efforts this year to recreate a patriotic atmosphere reminiscent of earlier years. Capt. Ron Bliss of Temple, U. S. Army Vietnam prisoner of war for six years, will be the speaker for the 9 a.m. patriotic program July 4th.

The parade at 10 a.m. will have as its theme "Famous Faces Of History." Professionally decorated floats, sponsored by local businesses, and floats made by local groups will carry out the theme. The locally made floats will be judged in five categories for cash prizes. Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force units, recreational organizations, other exhibits and hundreds of horses are in the mile-long parade.

The parade and the patriotice program are under the supervision of the Belton Bicentennial Commission as a part of the Bicentennial activities.

The July 2, 3, 4, rodeos in the arena in Confederate Park begin at 8:15 p.m. with Bobby Steiner, son of Tommy Steiner, as producer. Steiner stock has been used in Belton rodeos for over 20 years. This year, silver belt buckles will be given to event winners, and a saddle will be awarded to the best all-round cowboy.

Steiner Rodeo Ranch of Austin has provided mostly national rodeo finals stock for Belton, and there will be different stock every night. Every horse, bull, calf or steer will come out the chutes at only one performance.

Tickets for the rodeos are now on sale at the Belton Area Chamber of Commerce office, 106 S. East St. Reserved seats nearest the chutes are $3 and other reserved seats are $2.50 each. Tickets may be bought by mail. Checks or money order must accompany the order, made payable to Belton Rodeo.

Belton's first July 4th celebration was in 1850 -- the year Bell County and Belton were founded. Independence Day events were held intermittently over the years and became annual in 1919, when area members of the American Expeditioary Force were honored.

The first rodeo was held in 1924. It has grown from a hot afternoon, stand-up affair to a three-night performance in specially designed rodeo facilities.

The annual Belton Rodeo is a world championship rodeo approved by the Rodeo Cowboys Association, the national accrediting organization for the sport.

Alcoa Increases Can Prices

Aluminum Company of America has increased the price paid to the public for recyclable aluminum cans from 10 to 15 cents a pound.

The new price, reflecting increased metal value and a 95 percent energy savings from bauxite-produced aluminum, is effective immediately at all Alcoa "Yes We Can" collection centers.

The company's Dallas Fort Worth Center, the nation's leading aluminum can reclamation complex, has reclaimed and recycled some 200 million cans during its four-year existence while paying the public one million dollars.

Office Building

in order to consider evidence relative to the Waste Load Evaluation for the following segment of the Brazos River Basin:

Segment No. 1214 - San Gabriel River - Little River and confluence to headwater

The evaluation has been made pursuant to Title 40, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 130, Sections 130.24, 130.25, and 130.26, and the State of Texas Continuing Planning Process which requires a waste load allocation for those segments classified water quality limiting. Segments classified as water quality segments are defined as those segments in which the measured instream quality does not meet the Texas Water Quality Standards.

The purpose of the Waste Load Evaluation is to define waste treatment levels that will result in the stream segment meeting applicable stream standards. The general approach followed is: a) describe the stream segment, b) define the water quality problem, c) calculate the segment assimilative capacity, d) define the localized assimilative capacity by mathematical modeling, and e) establish acceptable waste discharges and schedules of implementation.

Copies of the evaluation are available upon request. TSA Predicts July 4 Fatalities, Urges Safety

According to the Texas Safety Association, nationwide traffic fatality projections for the July Fourth Holiday are the lowest in almost 25 years.

TSA President Edwin B. Locke today noted that Texas motorists can help keep the toll at a minimum by buckling their safety belts, observing speed limits and paying attention to some of the hazards which accompany the energy shortage.

"While the decline of highway death and injury which has accompanied the lowering of speed limits has received wide publicity," Locke said, "some of the hazards created by the energy shortage have not attracted much attention."

He specified the increase of small cars on the highways. According to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, the occupants of smaller cars involved in crashes tend to sustain more severe injuries than the occupants of larger cars.

"Small car drivers should be aware of the extra hazards they face," Locke said "While we urge all drivers to buckle up and drive defensively, drivers of subcompacts should be doubly cautious."

Locke also noted the sharp increase in the presence of gas-saving motorcycles on the road today and the corresponding increase in cycle-car accidents. He urged drivers to be on the lookout for two-wheeled vehicles, and to accord them the normal driving courtesies.

Some drivers, Locke said, continue to put themselves and others in extreme danger by taking along an extra can of gasoline in the car. "Trying to beat the fuel shortage by transporting gasoline anywhere besides the fuel tank is playing with dynamite," he said.

Even in "safety cans" gasoline vapors can leak, ready to explode with the introduction of the tiniest spark.

The National Safety Council has predicted that 450 to 550 persons will die in traffic accidents over the holiday period beginning at 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 3 and ending at midnight Sunday, July 7. The last comparable July Fourth Holiday in Texas was in 1972 when people died in traffic accidents.

VA Insures Delivery Of Checks

The Veterans Administration has embarked on an all-out program to insure prompt delivery of GI Bill education and training checks.

The 58 VA Regional Offices have been directed by Donald E. Johnson, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, to start recruiting and training programs for 1,300 VA "Men on Campus."

Vet-Reps will be assigned full-time to schools with large veteran enrollments and will assist in distributing GI student checks and serve as agency liaison in contacts with colleges and veteran-students.

The program, announced by the President, will involve expenditures of about $2 million in the current fiscal year ending June 30, and more then $24 million in the next fiscal year. The program was developed by a crack management team of VA and office of management and Budget officials in response to a Presidential directive of last March 31.

The new Vet-Reps will be available to college campuses having large veteran enrollments in advance of the heavy Fall enrollment.

Most Vet-Reps are expected to be Vietnam veterans now employed by VA or recruited from outside the agency.

Well Producing Natural Gas

A natural gas discovery has been made in Winkler County of West Texas by Lone Star Producing Company, a subsidiary of Lone Star Gas Company, Dallas.

During a drill stem test of the well, an Ellenberger interval from 21,660 to 21,953 feet, the well, Pat Howell No. 1, flowed at an approximate rate of 24 million cubic feet per day on a 1/2 inch choke with a flowing pressure of 3500 psi. The amount of carbon dioxide and hydrogen sulfide in this gas is not presently known.

The remainder of the Ellenberger formation, an estimated 400-500 feet, will be drilled prior to additional testing and completion of the well. Lone Star has 100% working interest in the well prior to payout, decreasing to 25% thereafter.

Lone Star owns additional acreage in the well's immediate vicinity.
